

MISS COLTON A BRIDE

Wedded to Lieutenant Commander Davis, of Navy.

SERVICE READ BY TWO UNCLES

St. John's Church crowded with friends—Ceremony a Military One. Groom's Attendants Brother Officers in Dress Uniform of the Service—Miss Foraker a Bridemaid.

St. John's Church was crowded to the doors yesterday with the host of friends of Miss Emily Marian Colton, better known as Daisy, and Lieut. Commander Archibald H. Davis, who were there to witness their marriage. Chrysanthemums, against the background of palms and ferns, adorned the altar, and a beautiful service was played as a prelude and accompaniment to the service, which was read by the two uncles of the bride, Rev. Sumnerfield Snively, of Philadelphia, and Rev. Thaddeus Snively, of Chicago, assisted by the rector of the church, Rev. Roland Cotton Smith.

It was a military wedding, most of the male attendants being brother officers of the bridegroom, and all wore the full dress uniform of the service.

The bridegroom was led by the ushers—Lieut. Commander Archibald H. Davis, U. S. N.; Lieut. Commander Mark Bristol, Lieut. Commander Scott, Pay Inspector Thomas Holliday Hicks, Lieut. Walter M. Falconer, all of the navy, and Capt. Andrew T. Long, U. S. A., and Mr. Nathaniel Francis and Kimborough Davis, a brother of the bridegroom.

Present Pretty Picture.

Following them came the two bridesmaids, Miss Louise Foraker, daughter of Senator Foraker, and Miss Helen Poulke, daughter of Mr. Charles Foulke. Mrs. Davenport Brown, daughter of Justice McKenna, followed in her wake as matron of honor. All were gowned in picturesque costumes of old pastel shade of old rose satin, fashioned after the empire model, with manderin sleeves over underbodies of creamy point lace, the surplice folds of the bodice and the edges of the outer sleeves being edged with bands of satin. They wore large picture hats of the same shade, and carried bouquets of white roses.

The bride, radiant in her happiness, was escorted by her father, Col. Colton, and was supported by her mother, Mrs. Colton, the soft folds falling in graceful lines to the edge of the train.

Old rose point, combined with tulle, formed the trimming of the gown, and a tulle veil extended her slender figure, being held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a velvet bound prayer-book, from which fell a cluster of white orchids, held by streamers of white ribbon.

Reception After Ceremony.

After the ceremony a reception and wedding breakfast was held at the bride's home in Connecticut avenue. Pink chrysanthemums everywhere, gave an air of festivity to the handsome home, within the entrance of the first drawing-room, of which stood Col. Colton and the bride and groom to welcome the guests.

Later in the afternoon Lieutenant Commander Davis and his bride left for their bridal tour at the expiration of which they will make their home in Philadelphia, Lieutenant Commander Davis being stationed at League Island.

They will spend every Sunday with Col. Colton at his home here, so that Washington is not to lose one of its favorite daughters. The bride of today has long been identified with the social life of the Capital, and has won for herself a position in the hearts of the hosts of friends she can call her own for her depth of sweetness and character.

Among the out-of-town guests who attended the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Holt and their daughter, Misses Holt, of Burlington, N. C., Miss Penelope Davis, of Raleigh, N. C., and the distinguished members of Capital society to witness the ceremony.

Miss Foraker, who looked very well in a handsome grey chiffon gown with white lace, was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Timmons, who was gowned in grey cloth trimmed with lace and with embroidery trimming in pastel shades. Her sister, Mrs. Arthur Lee, was in a coral cloth gown trimmed with lace and braiding. Mrs. Ridgely wore a gown of black and gold striped velvet with hat to correspond. Mrs. William F. Draper wore old blue satin and lace.

Mrs. Charles Post was in black velvet with trimming of jet, and her daughter, Mrs. Bulmer, wore a modish gown of London smoke velvet and lace. Miss Mary Oliver was smartly gowned in pruned-colored cloth with braided trim.

Mrs. Boardman's gown was of black velvet, elaborately trimmed with Irish lace. Miss Boardman was clad in a suit of old blue cloth with trimmings of lace. Mrs. Murray Cobb wore a black velvet gown with a black velvet jacket over a jumper of cream lace. Her hat was trimmed with white plumes. Mrs. Chatter's gown was of London smoke, a broadcloth, elaborately braided and embroidered. Her hat was of the same shade, was trimmed with American Beauty roses. Mrs. Lee Phillips was smartly attired in a suit of pale blue cloth with fur.

Miss Jennings wore a suit of cream with hat to match, trimmed with maribou, and a box of the same. Miss Williams was gowned in a suit of London smoke. Her hat was of pearly colored velvet and plumes. Miss Seckendorf wore old blue liberty silk elaborately trimmed with lace. Mrs. Charles Brown wore a beautiful gown of brown panne velvet with hat to correspond. Mrs. Foraker was handsomely gowned in black velvet elaborately trimmed with white lace. Her fur was ermine. Mrs. Wainwright's gown was a beautiful creation of old blue chiffon velvet with trimming of ecrú lace.

The bride's cousin, Miss Clark, who makes her home with Col. Colton and his family, was prettily gowned in a net trimmed with bands of cloth and sable. A hat trimmed with sable and emerald green plumes completed her costume.

Among other guests were Col. and Mrs. Elliott, of the Marine Barracks; Mrs. Clarence Edwards, Dr. and Mrs. Pleadwell, who are just home from China; Mrs. Hinds, wife of Lieut. Alfred W. Hinds; Paymaster Samuel McGowan; Paymaster and Mrs. Heap, and Miss Pansy Bloomer, Col. and Mrs. Slebert, Rear Admiral and Miss Eleanor Terry, Mrs. Charles Parrish, Mrs. J. H. Newbold, Col. and Mrs. Andrews, Mrs. and Miss Loring, Mrs. Walcott Tucker, Mrs. Richard Mulligan, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis and Miss Elroy Curtis, and Mrs. Reber.

A CHARMING BRIDE.

Mrs. Archibald H. Davis, who was Miss Emily Marian Colton.

IN THE SOCIAL WORLD.

Congress Hall Hotel on Capitol Hill. They will be at home after December 1. Mrs. Muldowney is the daughter of Mrs. Frank Thomas, who was before her marriage Miss Hildrich, of one of Philadelphia's oldest families. She is one of the most attractive and popular girls of Asbury Park, and has a large circle of friends in New York and Philadelphia, where she has spent her winters since her debut.

Claude Edward O'Donoghue, of Washington, was quietly wedded yesterday afternoon to Miss Mary Blanchette Irene Ogilvie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ogilvie, in St. John's Catholic Church, Frederick, Md.

The ceremony was performed in the presence of the immediate families and a few friends. Miss Grace O'Donoghue, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid. Mr. Stephen Jevister, of Washington, acted as best man. Immediately after the ceremony they left for the Jamestown Exposition. They will make their home in Washington.

The British Ambassador is to be the chief guest at the banquet of the Society of Mayflower Descendants, to be held at the New Willard Hotel this evening.

A delightful luncheon was held yesterday at the Brazilian Embassy, the genial Ambassador and Mme. Nabuco being hosts. The guest complimentary whom the party met was Dr. Oswaldo Cruz, of Brazil, the noted scientist who stamped out yellow fever in Brazil.

Invited to meet Dr. Cruz were the Mexican Ambassador, Senor Creel; the Portuguese Minister, Viscount de Alente; the Argentine Minister, Senor Portella; the Chilean Minister, Senor Diaz; Mr. Bacon, Assistant Secretary of State; Mr. William Buchanan, Surgeon General Walter Wyman, and Mr. Gurgel do Amaral, of the Embassy staff.

Miss Theodora Shonts, whose engagement to the Due de Chaulnes is at last an acknowledged fact, will arrive here today to attend a reunion at Mrs. Sommers' School, where she and her sister, Miss Margaret Shonts, were educated. The latter has been at Atlanta, Ga., for the wedding of Miss Leonora Owensley to the Rev. Charles Beck Ackley, at which she acted as bridesmaid.

The Russian Ambassador, Baron Rosen, accompanied by his guest, Baron Schlippenbach, Russian consul general at Chicago, have left town for New York. Baron Schlippenbach will not return to Washington, but will go from New York to his home in Chicago.

M. Jusseland, the French Ambassador, also left town yesterday.

A large number of seats and several boxes have already been sold by the Columbian women for the benefit performance of "Lola from Berlin," at the New National Theater next Monday night. Several blocks of desirable seats have, however, been reserved for the box office sale, which begins this morning.

The Washington Auxiliary of the National Indian Association will meet at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. A. G. Wilkison, 1235 K street, Friday, November 22, from 2 to 3 p. m.

Miss Margaret Wade has returned from a visit in Pennsylvania and is at 1140 Connecticut avenue for the remainder of the winter.

Wants Branch Libraries.

Carl P. Vitz, assistant librarian of the Public Library, read an interesting paper on "Branch library work" at the regular monthly meeting of the District of Columbia Library Association, in the auditorium of the library last night.

He spoke of the necessity for branch libraries in Washington, and said three attempts had been made to pass a bill in Congress allowing the library to avail itself of the $350,000 fund donated by Andrew Carnegie for that purpose.

Don't Let Your Piles Grow

Every Hemorrhoidal Ulcer Is a Fertile Field for Cancer and Other Deadly Diseases.

TRIAL PACKAGE FREE.

Constitution unchecked by inflammation, inflammation begets piles, and piles too often superinduce tumors of malignant nature.

Piles (or hemorrhoids) rarely kill, but they cause more agony in a few minutes than many more serious troubles.

They are easy to cure if you get it right.

An operation with a knife is dangerous, agonizing, and rarely a permanent success.

There is just one way to be cured—no sure way, painlessly and privately—and that is with Pyramid Pile Cure.

We mail a free trial package to all who write.

It will give you instant relief, and start you well on the way to a perfect cure.

Then you can get a full-sized box from any druggist for 50 cents, and often one box cures.

PABST WINS TROPHY

Captures Eight Blue Ribbons at the Horse Show.

HACKNEYS HAVE THEIR DAY

Mrs. Watson, of Baltimore, Carries Off the Gold Cup with Lord Baltimore and My Maryland II—Mr. Morris, of Virginia, Wins the Blue for the Pink Coat Riders.

Madison Square Garden, Nov. 20.—Hackneys made their bows of farewell at the Horse Show to-day and to-morrow the breeding interests will be catered to by the American trotter. Drivers and racers get no let up, however, and they will be in the collar until the last minute of the week for their own accommodation and to entertain the crowd.

Through the victory of Meadowbrook Ma-jesty for the hackney challenge cup Fred Pabst, of Milwaukee, won out the $250 trophy and brought his tally of blue ribbons to eight.

Mrs. Watson, of Baltimore, in winning the Horse Show gold cup with Lord Baltimore and My Maryland II to a mail phantom from the amateur whips, made a record for the versatility of American women as drivers.

Miss Bedford a Winner.

Miss Emily H. Bedford, of Brooklyn, who is also shattering precedent by winning with the champion hackney Hildred to a gig, was a rider in the afternoon class. Miss Bedford rode the Kentucky mare Mary Ann, a registered saddle horse in pedigree, that will trot half a mile in 1:06 to sulky any time. Mary Ann was second in the good class to Topsy, one of the best small saddle horses ever shown.

There is a lack of hunters from the Long Island, New Jersey, and New York sides this year, for although the fields are large the pick of the lot hails from Virginia and Canada. In the Corinthian class, in which the riders were amateurs in pink coats, Julian A. Morris, a Virginian, won the blue handsomely on David Gray, but the real honors of the Corinthian class fell to The Wasp, the Canadian half bred, placed second, in winning the blue in the afternoon class.

The Wasp had a light boy, but this time the gelding had to pack the 210 pounds of the owner, James Murray, of Toronto Hunt. The Wasp cleared the fences under the welter-weight without a flaw.

Vanderbilt Gets the Gate.

There were sighs from the old guard when A. G. Vanderbilt's second string in the four-in-hand class "Got the gate." The boys included Sweet Marie, Gibson Boy, Pretty Polly, and The Major.

There was a dashing and large field in the runaway class, and in taking Mrs. Gerken's Shop Girl for the blue the judges reverted to a type overlooked at recent shows.

There was length in trotting. Paul A. Sarg's driver, W. C. Grant, possibly brought surprise at the judicial change of mind, ignored the yellow ribbon won by Heather Belle and raced out of the ring. He must have apologized later for this act of discourtesy for the Sarg team won a ribbon in a succeeding class.

At the opening of the evening session the lead for blue ribbons in harness and saddle horses was with Judge Moore. He had seven. C. W. Watson, of Baltimore, five, and Reginald Vanderbilt, four.

Miss Caroline Fellowes—Blue costume and a dark green hat.

Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt—Costume of pink blue cloth, blue plume hat and fox fur.

Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt—Black and white costume with a hat to match and fox fur.

Mrs. C. W. Watson, of Baltimore—Black costume and a black hat with green plumes.

Mrs. E. D. Morgan and her daughters, who were interested spectators from Box No. 4, on the north side of the Garden.

Col. Delancey A. Kane occupied the next box, and with him were Mrs. Philip Livermore and Miss Iselin.

MAY REJECT OKLAHOMANS.

Upper House Not to Receive Senators Named by Governor.

When Congress meets a week from next Monday, there will be one State in the Union which will be entirely without representation in the Senate.

That will be Oklahoma, just admitted to the Union. The new Commonwealth will be without representation for a month or more in fact, until her first legislative assemblies and formally elects two Senators.

The first official act of Gov. Charles N. Haskell, after assuming office was to appoint Thomas P. Gore, the blind orator, and Robert L. Owens as United States Senators to hold office until the legislature should elect.

If these two men present their credentials on the opening day, they will not be accepted.

This is the opinion of Senators who have expressed themselves on the case as they hold that under the Federal Constitution, as applied to the Oklahoma case, the governor has no power to appoint.

PRONOUNCES IT EFFECTIVE.

Senator Lodge Pleased with President's Financial Measure.

None of the leaders of Congress whom the President may have had in mind when he said last Sunday that they had agreed upon a financial measure, which will be passed early in the session, has visited the White House recently. Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, and Senator Hemenway, of Indiana, were at the White House yesterday, but neither is a member of the Senate Finance Committee or has any special interest in currency matters.

Senator Lodge, however, remarked after talking from the President's office yesterday that he believed the measures taken by the administration to relieve the financial situation would be entirely effective.

Santo Domingo Collector Here.

William E. Pulliam, collector of customs of Santo Domingo under the convention recently negotiated between the United States and Santo Domingo, arrived in Washington yesterday, and had a conference with Secretary Root and Maj. Frank McIntyre, acting chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs, regarding the situation in Santo Domingo.

Thief Kobs a Bride.

While Rev. Father Carroll, of St. Patrick's Church, Eleventh and G streets northwest, was performing the ceremony which made Miss Helen C. Bowman, of Newark, Ohio, and Harry Timmons, of this city, husband and wife yesterday morning, a thief made his way into the vestibule of the edifice and appropriated a hand satchel belonging to the bride, according to a report made to the police.

COMING ATTRACTIONS.

Lulu Glaser and company, including Ralph C. Herz, will be seen in the new musical play by John J. McNally, called "Lola from Berlin," at the National Theater for one week, beginning next Monday evening.

Klaw & Erlanger are responsible for this production, and present it in their usual painstaking way, with a thoroughly competent cast and adequate equipment of scenery and costumes. Miss Glaser plays the character of a young German girl who came unattended from Berlin in answer to the advertisement of a New York corporation lawyer, who is endeavoring to find the heir of a wealthy German recently deceased in America.

The story is told in three acts, the scenes representing the library of the corporation lawyer in his Fifth avenue home, a drawing-room in the same home, and an exterior scene representing a magnificent residence overlooking the Hudson.

Clara Bloodgood, accompanied by William Courtney and such well-known players as John Emerson, Frank Patton, Zella Sears, Mrs. Sam Sothern, and Ma-Frahan, comes to the Belasco Theater next week to present the comedy, "The Truth," "The Truth," it is said, deals with the deplorable lack of this desirable virtue, and, incidentally, paints a vivid picture of hereditary moral traits. Bloodgood has been almost entirely identified with Fitz plays. She first attracted attention by making an important character out of a small role in "The Climbers." This accomplishment, praised by the critics, ranks with "The Girl with the Green Eyes" as a vehicle. Two years later Mr. Fitch wrote "The Coronet of the Duchess" for her, a play that was seen in New York only once, "The Truth," now in its second season in England, as well as in this country.

With the indorsement of one year's run in London and coming directly from a four-months' run in New York, Charles Frohman, present at the Columbia Theater next week, the musical comedy, "The Dairymaids." It comes here just as presented at the Criterion Theater, where New York called it the best song show since the days of the "Dairymaids" has more laughs and more tears than any attraction has boasted in a long time. Added to this, Mr. Frohman has given it a fun-making and melody-carrying cast that is the pick of the lead in the country. It contains Huntley Wright, from the Gayety Theatre, London; Edgar Atchinson Ely, Eugene O'Rourke, Julia Sanderson, Florence Hope, Bessie Mae Vole, Emily Francis, Ruby Ray, Langford Kirby, Freda Weigold, and a chorus of fifty.

Chase's will next week have a bill including McMahon and Chappelle's Pullman maids. Mr. Julian Eltinge, the Colby family, John Hazzard, Grant Arnold, and the stock company with the scenic sensation, Ford and Swor, Scott, and "The Aeronaut's First Flight" motion pictures. Mr. Eltinge, fresh from the success he achieved in "The Maid and the Millionaire," will present his new creation, which he introduces as the latest impersonation of the "Gibson Girl," showing three changes of gowns. The Colby family will give their home circle musical novelty. Mr. Hazzard, just out of May Irwin's company, in which he was principal comedian, will be a conspicuous quantity. The other offerings all line up with the numbers mentioned.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin," at the Majestic Theater next week, promises to be one of the most attractive offerings of the Kathryn Purcell Stock Company this season. A heavy advance sale indicates unusual interest in the production, especially among ladies and children. All of the story lines in the stock company will grip as the well-known characters whose names have become familiar to every theatergoer.

"Bertha, the Sewing Machine Girl," which will play at the New Academy next week, is a drama of "atmosphere" and rich in local color. The piece is a scenic production of the first grade, having no less than twelve sets of scenery in its four acts, three to each act. The story takes place in New York City, and of the present day. The company engaged to present "Bertha, the Sewing Machine Girl," is said to be among the best which will appear here this season.

This is the opinion of Senators who have expressed themselves on the case as they hold that under the Federal Constitution, as applied to the Oklahoma case, the governor has no power to appoint.

At the Gayety, next week, the attraction will be the "Bon Ton Extravaganza Company" with some foreign novelties.

The attraction at the Lyceum next week will be the "Lady Birds" Company, whose entertainment is called "The Isle of Sonora."

MACCRACKENS TO RETURN.

Expecttd They Will Be Brought Here To-day.

It is probable Mrs. Ruth MacCracken, her two daughters, and son, will be brought to this city from Baltimore to-day under guard of a United States marshal.

The family were held for the Washington authorities several days ago, and everything is waiting now for the signature of one of the United States judges to the warrant of removal. He has been away from Baltimore, but it is expected he will return early this morning.

On reaching this city Mrs. MacCracken and family will probably be sent to the house of detention and then to one of the station houses. The police have secured nearly all the necessary evidence, and a preliminary hearing will be set for an early date.

Rev. Dr. Stafford Much Better.

Rev. Denis J. Stafford, who went to Forestville, Md., to recover from an illness, is expected to return to this city before next Sunday. His condition is rapidly improving.

GRAVES OF OUR PRESIDENTS.

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

The grave of the humblest soldier of the United States is marked and cared for by a grateful country, but until now the national government has not undertaken the care of one of the burial places of the men who have served the nation as chief magistrate. The last Congress took the first step in this direction when it accepted as a gift the burial place of Andrew Johnson, constituted it a national cemetery, and, at the instance of Representative Walter P. Brownlow, appropriated $22,000 for its improvement. The contract for the walls, roads, and lodge-house will be let to-day. This may be the beginning of a movement by which Congress will provide for the care of the graves of all the Presidents.

The next Congress will be asked by Representative John Lamb, of Richmond, to appropriate money to erect a monument to John Tyler, who is buried in Hollywood Cemetery at Richmond, and whose grave is marked only by a wooden slab, placed by the action of the cemetery to identify the spot where rests the body of the tenth President of the United States. Only a few feet distant is the tomb of James Monroe, a handsome monument.

When President Roosevelt made his pilgrimage to the tomb of Andrew Jackson at the Hermitage, near Nashville, Tenn., a month ago, he said: "On behalf of the nation I wish to thank the ladies' associations who have taken hold of this property and have preserved it; but I do not think it just or fair that the burden which should be supported by the nation should be a drain upon private purses. I shall do all that I can to see that the nation relieves you, not of the management, but of the expense of the country hereafter. Surely no use of public money can be better, can be wiser, than in keeping up as an inspiration for the future the homes of the great statesmen of the past."

If the President's desires are heeded by Congress, the Jackson tomb will be the second for which the government will care, it being a coincidence that both are in Tennessee. Of course, the national government has done much for the Mount Vernon property, and as it is under the very eyes of Congress it will never suffer, but however Congress may go to the tomb and provide for the care of the graves of all the Presidents it would find much of the work already done by States or by patriotic societies, although in some instances nothing at all has been done.

The most magnificent memorials which mark the last resting places of our Presidents are those in honor of the three Presidents who met their death by the bullets of assassins and one who was the greatest of our military heroes. Abraham Lincoln's body is buried at Springfield, Ill., and his monument there is one of the most imposing which the country has erected. James A. Garfield's body lies in Cleveland, and William McKinley's at Canton, Ohio. The monuments at their graves are splendid testimonials to the worth of the men and typify the patriotism of the Americans who gave liberally of their money for their erection. The tomb of Ulysses S. Grant, care River drive, in New York, is the tribute of a great people to a great hero. Other Presidents of the period since the civil war lie in the cemeteries of their home towns, their graves marked with monuments fitting their high position in life. Hayes is buried at Fremont, Ohio; Arthur, in Albany, N. Y., and Benjamin Harrison, in Crown Hill Cemetery, at Indianapolis.

George Washington lies buried at Mount Vernon, under the windows of his old mansion. His tomb is the most sacred in America, and is visited by thousands of American patriots and foreign admirers every year. But the government is not to be thanked for the preservation of this place. The patriotic women of the country, organized as Ladies of the Mount Vernon Association, bought the property in 1856, when the heirs of the Washington family were forced to part with it, and they have cared for it until this day.

John Adams, who succeeded Washington, an his son, John Quincy Adams, who became President while his father still lived, lie side by side under the Unitarian Church at Quincy, Mass. Tablets on either side of the church tell the story of this great man and his great son. Of John Adams, "On the Fourth of July, 1776, he pledged his life, his fortune, and his sacred honor to the Independence of his country. On the Fourth of July, 1826, he was summoned to the Independence of immortality, and the judgment of his God." Busts of father and son surmount the tablets.

Thomas Jefferson lies near his home at Monticello, in a wild spot he himself selected, and under a stone on which is carved the inscription which he dictated: "The author of the Declaration of Independence, of the Virginia statute for religious freedom, and father of the University of Virginia." The first stone set up with this legend was broken into bits by vandals. In 1878 Congress appropriated money for a new monument, and William W. Corcoran, endowed a chair in the Uni-
